Who is going to be the future if not you?

The history of our country should be told to our generation. It is important to know what happened before independence.

I knew that my parents and my older friends suffered, but I didn't know how much. Today I understand their pain. I can see how the objectives of Timor-Leste should change for the future.

Today we don't need to be like those people who sacrificed their lives. We should still look at the past and use it to create our own future.

We need to listen to each other, trust and respect each other, so the past does not repeat itself.

I want to start to implement human rights by myself. I have the right and freedom to do it.

I will not keep my experiences to myself. I will pass them on. I will share the new knowledge I've got.
